Two princes have been murdered. A curse has been put on their killer, but a vengeful god is waiting to pull off the ultimate sacrifice. How do you die before you are even born? Show More... From May 15th, here's an official announcement from the development team, making it clear for all to see where Armored Warfare stands in the galactic stage of development: Today we have released our roadmap for the year 2019. It will be the first time we will be releasing such a detailed roadmap for us, and so it will be the first time we are presenting a real roadmap. We are working right now on the following titles:

- Redesigning the technology from the ground up. The technology is the core foundation for all the game features. To ensure that they are on track, we need to spend time working on the core systems.
- Improvement of many aspects of the gameplay. The game has already been released on a few operating systems, and we have gotten some very useful feedback. We are now going to go back and fix as many gameplay issues as we can.
- Massive improvements of the UI and interface. We want to give a better experience for the players in the game.
- Further polishing and balancing of the game. We have already made a major change to the counter system in the game. We want to make sure that the people who play the game for the first time get a good first impression. The third title in our roadmap is a big one:

- PVE mode. The PVE mode will be included in the same package as the ArmA-based CQB mode. You can play with other players against AI and with bots.
- PVP mode. This will be an online team-based mode that combines the elements of shooter and MMORPGs. We have included six locations, due to time constraints, in order to keep a balance and to ensure that the modus of the game is logical.
- Arena. This will be a mode where we will host our own tournaments.
- Galactic CTF mode. In this mode, teams will be hosting their own war zones against other teams.
- The flag carrier strike. In this mode, the main objective is for the team to capture and hold the flag carrier. We have included two seasons per year. One of them will be for the bug and balance c9d1549cdd
