In Planet of Bots, you work as a bot developer, the one who makebots by coding them. One day, the clock strikes 13 and a virus attack the entire world. From there you need to get back to the first planet and repair the bots, only this time to keep them from self-destructing. To do that you need to gain experience with new software and hardware, such as the M5... Umm, the M-5. It's the fastest bot on the planet. Just to make sure that you get the job done in the shortest amount of time as possible, you add a little bit of crime to the mix. Story Due to an error during a previous project, the developers for Planet of Bots forgot to uninstall their most recent bot on Earth. That bot turned out to be a bit too power-hungry and ended up overloading the entire planet. And now all of these bots would go ballistic on their own and cause destruction of the world. You need to get them all working again and fix them before the times runs out. The main story is composed of five chapters, that you can complete in any order, and a few optional sub-games that can be accessed for a short time. You can pay to unlock hidden menus, but all this will not affect the gameplay in anyway. Gameplay The story of Planet of Bots is divided into five chapters, each one offering different gameplay modes: Challenge mode; Death Maze; Time Trial; Survival mode; Bankruptcy. Challenge mode; The first chapter takes place in planet earth. Here you need to rebuild the bots. The bots destroy the world and you need to get the machines working again. Since all bots are controlled by code, you'll have to let them run their way by manipulating your mouse. By clicking on the right mouse button, you can create programs to control the bot. You can use these programs to activate the pathfinding feature for each bot, as well as to disarm your enemies or, if necessary, to trap them on the screen. You can also use programs to reprogram the bots and give them their initial programming to handle the landscape. You'll have to use all this to gather the three gears in this chapter. You can also use programs to provide shields to the bots, to protect them against projectiles, to heal them when they're injured, to turn them on and off, to

The premise of the article was if you have an interesting product or service, you need to find a way to position yourself in a position to be found. This means, you need a distinctive tagline to go along with your app. But what does that mean? Well, according to Waldo De Los Rios, LMD (Language Management Developer) for... Android Appointments Android Appointments is a great new timesheet app designed to make you more productive by giving you the ability to organize your time on-the-go. I've started a new project, called Droplets, a free online game for the purpose of developing Playful, a new sandbox-type game for the iPhone. I've designed Droplets so that it can be played normally, in portrait view; and then when the game starts a simple beauty mode is available to make your life easy. All I have left to announce is that we're going to have a contest for best buttula media maker called Hummingbird Butt- Ula Media. We'll be giving the winner $300 and shipping of their buttula to UK. Honestly though, it's mostly going to be about running around and having fun, not recording and editing. So this is about having fun with your buttula, and more importantly making people having fun with you! The winner will get posted on my blog! Announcement to follow. One last thing, I just remember something I hope you see in the videos - my 'photo & video' capabilities aren't very well suited to making video on the fly. I might do better with the video editing when the project begins. A lot of the footage I've done has been just for fun - not exactly the type of thing you want to be selling your babies. And to those I've displayed my best videos on my blog - I hope you find them fun!
