Marsiglia Marsiglia is a comune (municipality) in the Province of Nuoro in the Italian region Sardinia, located about north of Cagliari and about northeast of Nuoro. History Marsiglia was first settled in 1000 BC. The city was historically and still is a center of the cult of Capo Rosso and the worship of the Goddess. In Marsiglia, each year at the beginning of September, at the feast of Dio Santo, during the Ora Sacra (traditional San Domenico), the hill and the environs of Castrovillari and the neighboring villages are dressed in a carnival clothing, with masks and costumes which are suspended in the morning on poles with curling branches and draped on the faces and the hands, and during the night they are discarded in the street. At dawn a procession and procession is formed around the local farmers carrying a statue of Saint Francesco di Sales on a flat bed, decorated with fruits, straw and flowers. The procession enters the historic center of the town through the main street and crosses the Ponte Emanuele, followed by the mayor and the municipal prefect and the Easter Blessing of the candy. By the 16th century, the commune of Marsiglia was a fiefdom belonging to the Bishops of Cagliari. On January 1, 1860, Marsiglia
